

Never miss a message with Voicemail to Email

What is Voicemail to Email?

Voicemail to Email is a feature that allows you to listen to your business voicemail messages from your smartphone, tablet, laptop, PC, or any device that can receive emails. When your NEC desk phone receives a new voicemail, an email notification is sent to an email address of your choice. The email will include the recorded voicemail message as a file attachment that you can listen to, back up, or share with co-workers.

Improve Customer Support

Customers will often evaluate a company based on how long it takes them to respond to their messages. Voicemail to Email notifications will improve your response time by making it easy to access your messages, even when you're out of the office. Plus, if you can't respond right away, it's now simple to forward the message to a co-worker who can!

Increase Productivity and Efficiency

If you save a lot of voicemail messages on your desk phone, then you know it can be cumbersome trying to find a specific message right when you need it. However, with Voicemail to Email, you can leverage all of the search tools provided by Email to quickly locate important messages. It's also simple to drag recordings from email right into a folder on your computer, making for efficient record keeping and safe back up.

Key Benefits

- Receive your voicemail messages on the go using your smartphone, tablet, or computer
- Improve response time to prospects, customers, and important callers
- Easily forward voicemails to co-workers or anyone
- Simplifies searching for important messages
- Copy messages to your computer for safe back up and record keeping
- Keep your voicemail messages for as long as you want, without worrying about voicemail storage issues
- Set up email addresses for individual users or on a department level